Dear Elena,

Please forgive me.

Just days before you called to ask me to send the materials back to you, I threw them out. I had no idea you would want them back.

I hope and pray they were not originals and that all we are dealing with here are copying costs. Please let me know what the copying costs are, I will gladly pay them.

More important, I want to say I'm sorry for the whole sad incident between us. I started the whole thing by inviting you to my class without finding out exactly what you had to offer; by the time I found out (and realized that it was not just what my students needed) I quite rudely withdrew the invitation.

Again, please forgive me. I feel terrible about what happened. I hope we can put this behind us so that the next time we run into each other at Anche Chesed the tension will be gone and we can greet each other as friends.

I'm serious about reimbursing the copying costs. Please let me know.

Sincerely,

Ari
