

Subj: Fwd: email to journal news
Date: 1/20/2003 2:38:10 PM Eastern Standard Time
From: Judgewatch
To: letters@journalnews.com

I realized I forgot to include my address (283 Soundview Ave, WP) and day or night telephone numbers, 997- 8105, 997-1677 on the prior email sent just a few minutes ago.

In a message dated 1/20/2003 2:34:40 PM Eastern Standard Time, Judgewatch writes:

Subj: email to journal news
Date: 1/20/2003 2:34:40 PM Eastern Standard Time
From: Judgewatch
To: letters@journalnews.com

When is your newspaper going to start giving honest coverage of the issue of Pataki's corruption of the judicial process to your readers, instead of hypocritical suppression of it and the ongoing work of the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. in actually doing something about it. Your editorial in today's Journal News really takes the cake for skirting the real issues of judicial selection and discipline which we have been addressing through our civic activism since the infamous 1989 Three Year Deal. See our "Latest News" on CJA's website judgewatch.org

CJA has finally gotten permission to testify at the so-called confirmation hearings in Albany starting tomorrow morning. It would be in the public interest to cover (for a change) our presentation tomorrow by CJA Coordinator, Elena Ruth Sassower, unsung heroine of our time. Please pass this on to your news and feature editors so that they begin focussing on the right issues instead of suppressing and skirting them. Once you shine the glare of publicity on the travesty passing for "merit selection" by the governor, this really could be "the year of court reform." That can only happen by your exposing the role of the Governor and the Legislature in corrupting the judicial process, which we have long and persistently documented, as your editors and reporters well know.

Doris L. Sassower, Co-Founder of the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc., based in White Plains, NY.

---

Forwarded Message:

Subj: email to journal news
Date: 1/20/2003 2:34:40 PM Eastern Standard Time
From: Judgewatch
To: letters@journalnews.com

When is your newspaper going to start giving honest coverage of the issue of Pataki's corruption of the judicial process to your readers, instead of hypocritical suppression of it and the ongoing work of the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc. in actually doing something about it. Your editorial in today's Journal News really takes the cake for skirting the real issues of judicial selection and discipline which we have been addressing through our civic activism since the infamous 1989 Three Year Deal. See our "Latest News" on CJA's website judgewatch.org

CJA has finally gotten permission to testify at the so-called confirmation hearings in Albany starting tomorrow morning. It would be in the public interest to cover (for a change) our presentation tomorrow by CJA Coordinator, Elena Ruth Sassower, unsung heroine of our time. Please pass this on to your news and feature editors so that they begin focussing on the right issues instead of suppressing and skirting them. Once you shine the glare of publicity on the travesty passing for "merit selection" by the governor, this really could be "the year of court reform." That can only happen by your exposing the role of the Governor and the Legislature in corrupting the judicial process, which we have long and persistently documented, as your editors and reporters well know.

Doris L. Sassower, Co-Founder of the Center for Judicial Accountability, Inc., based in White Plains, NY.