Dear Elena:

It was good meeting you in Albany yesterday. I'm glad you enjoyed my remarks--and that you came up to say so.

As soon as I get out from under a couple of deadlines in front of me at the moment, I'll take a look at the material you gave me on your project, which I'm looking forward to doing.

In the meantime, as promised, here are a few items of mine that are related to my talk yesterday. And here too is a bit of information about the Cato Institute, including information about how you can support our work and receive our publications on a regular basis.

Again, very good meeting you, and do keep up the efforts that took shape yesterday.

Yours truly,

Roger Pilon
